Nominations for the 2008 Word of the Year to be voted on by the American Dialect Society January 9th in San Francisco http://americandialect.org/woty2008/

Political and Economic Words of the Year Nominated by Ben Zimmer, executive producer of the Visual Thesaurus, http://www.visualthesaurus.com/and member of the Executive Council of the American Dialect Society. bzimmer@thinkmap.com
(212) 381-0550

Political Nominations:

maverick: self-identified political status of McCain and Palin (also Tina Fey's adjective mavericky: "We are not afraid to get mavericky in there..."

vet (verb): an old term (originally from "veterinarian") with new prominence after questions were raised about the vetting of Palin game-changer: optimistic term used to describe McCain's selection of Palin (though some saw it as merely a hail Mary pass) going rogue: used by McCain staffers to describe Palin when she went off-message on the campaign trail lipstick on a pig: phrase that Republicans said Obama used as a veiled insult of Palin (based on her pit bull/hockey mom Convention joke)

PUMA: acronym for "Party Unity My Ass," used by disgruntled Hillary Clinton supporters after Obama locked up the nomination hopey changey: derisive epithet incorporating Obama's two main buzzwords (also dopey hopey changey)

H8: text-message abbreviation for "hate" -- opponents of California's Proposition 8 called it
"Proposition H8"

Blago-sphere: the surreal world inhabited by Rod Blagojevich czar: inter-agency point person to coordinate policy; Obama may be appointing a health czar, an energy czar, a car czar, a technology czar, etc.

Economic Nominations:

bailout: WOTY frontrunner, though it's been used in the financial sense since the Great Depression (based on the aviation term for an emergency landing, but also suggesting bailing water out of a boat, as well as getting bailed out from prison)
TARP: acronym for Troubled Assets Relief Program -- quickly turned into a verb ("Citibank got TARPed") getting/taking a haircut: accepting a less-than-optimal financial return (dates to 1955); Nancy Pelosi says the restructuring of the auto industry is "a barbershop" since "everybody's getting a haircut" going underwater: falling into negative equity; nearly one in seven homeowners are now underwater, owing more on their mortgages than their homes are worth credit tsunami: Alan Greenspan's term for the cataclysmic financial crisis (also financial tsunami)

toxic assets: assets of dubious value held by investment banks and other financial institutions; Paulson abandoned a plan to use the bailout fund to buy up toxic assets recessionista: person who remains stylish on a budget (also frugalista, recession chic)

Madoff: possible new term for "Ponzi scheme"; also used as a verb, as in "he Madoff with our money"

Alt-A: the next wave of mortgages to default after the subprime collapse; Alt-A mortgages are considered less risky than subprime but riskier than prime ("A-paper") mortgage loans

shovel-ready: used to describe infrastructure projects that can be started quickly when Obama's economic stimulus package is passed